

“A clean drink of water is a luxury where we need to drill a well a shower is unheard of. It’s the least we can do to skip ours for a week, so that others may survive.”

Volunteers from Austin and other locations world-wide will be vowing not to shower until they have each raised at least one thousand dollars toward life-saving water systems in East Africa. This outrageous fund-raiser, created by Austin non-profit, Well Aware, is designed to call attention to the necessity of water and raise proceeds for projects that will alleviate the monumental suffering that has resulted from deadly circumstances in Africa.

TOP FIVE REASONS YOU SHOULD JOIN US

- Free Shower Strike T-Shirt to sport your campaign
- Super fun group Striker events all week
- EASY participation - 2 minute sign-up for your own campaign webpage
- Built-in motivation to reach your goal quickly (you want to shower, right?)
- That warm, fuzzy feeling from doing something REALLY GREAT for others!

Don't miss our Shower Strike Launch Party on Sunday, July 24th at 7pm at Austin's fabulous Antone's. This will be no regular party. The grammy nominated Lost Bayou Ramblers are going to rock, and "Austin's Funniest Person" (Austin Chronicle), Nancy Reed, will emcee the event (prepare for monumental heckling).

We'll also have free Torchy's Tacos, raffles, silent auctions, Kenyan jewelry, surprise performances and more!
